

Those "Lovers" Again.—We had an item the other day about a loving couple, who conducted themselves with an amusing abandon in the Union Ticket Office, Water St., to the great amusement of those who were so fortunate as to be present. It will be recollected that the young man "bruined" his better half, that was to be, in the presence of a large number of persons, being perfectly oblivious of everything but his "own true love." Well, they went up the river and got married. (May nothing interrupt the even tenor of their still gliding simple lives.)—In returning they got into an omnibus at Bridgeport to come over to the city. There were several young ladies and gentlemen in the bus, besides our subjects, when the bridegroom proceeded to embrace his bride with a boldness out of all propriety in such a public place. The omnibus conductor reproved him for his indecency, and requested him to refrain, intimating at the same time that the consequences of a refusal to comply might not be altogether pleasant. Our verdant hero did desist for a minute, but soon renewed his loving endearments, when the conductor took him by the arm and told him he would have to cease his ardent manifestations or leave the vehicle.—This would have crushed an ordinary individual, but not so in the present case. Greeny released his Mary Ann again, but during the opportunity of the ride he would again bite and bite and steal a kiss or an embrace every time the conductor turned his back. The couple were a source of infinite amusement to the other passengers, as was evidenced by many half suppressed and full vent bursts of laughter, which had no more effect upon the subjects thereof than the same would have upon a dead donkey.

Fire in the Mountains.—We learn from passengers over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad that for several days the mountains between Altoona and Piedmont, and in the vicinity of New Creek Station, have been on fire. After night the sight is represented as awful, grand and imposing, the whole range of mountains, near which the railroad passes being streaked and striped with lines of fire. No great danger is apprehended by those living in the vicinity. When the fire approaches the fences surrounding the farms on the lowlands, the owners "fire against fire," that is they set the woods on fire near the property which they desire to protect and the fires meet. The woods are set on fire by hunters every season to drive the game towards the water courses, and by chesnut gatherers, who burn the leaves from the trees to get the nuts more conveniently.

A Suspected Thief.—On Saturday night, early, a dark skinned, evil eyed fellow was found half drunk and half asleep in a stall in the market house. A huckster woman told him to get up and betake himself to some more appropriate dormitory. The fellow got up and kicked the woman's butter and vegetables all over the market house. He was arrested by officer Lancaster and taken before Ald. McCourtney where he was fined "two and a half," and in default of payment committed to jail. He said he was from Philadelphia and his name was Abram Glass. The police have information which leads them to believe that the fellow is a low down thief, and lives by plundering kitchens and out-houses, though they have no authentic charge to make against him.

Highway Robbery.—We are informed by a gentleman just arrived from Grafton, that a highway robbery was committed near that place on Friday night. A Mr. Gooseman, of Taylor county, had been seen during the day with large sums of money in his possession.—A party of thieves concealed themselves by the roadside along which Mr. G. had to pass on his way home. A Mr. Jas. Kincaid passed the spot, and the rascals mistaking him for Gooseman, caught him, dragged him into the woods and rifling his pockets found the liberal sum of one dollar and a half for their pains. Kincaid was released with a kick and a curse for his poverty.

Obstructing Railroads.—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company have recently offered large rewards for the detection of parties obstructing the track of that road. We learn that a girl by the name of Rose was arrested on Friday night, at Fairmont, charged with this offence. She was committed to jail upon her own confession, and will be tried at the next term of court.

Another Freight Route to the East.—The Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad have announced to the public that they are in the field as competitors for the carrying trade between Cleveland and New York. They offer to carry freight between those two points by "all rail" via Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, at the same rates as charged by way of Dunkirk or Buffalo, and in as good time.

There is some question among those who enjoy the beautiful weather we are now having, whether this be Indian summer, Indian summer, proper, out to come next month. Though we have some where seen a statement by meteorologists that we have two Indian summers.—If this is so, we are now having the first.

A Serious Joke.—In a village not far distant, we understand, a quack sign was stolen in the night. The next morning it was found nailed near the entrance to the neighboring grave yard. The lettering on the sign board was: "To Dr. Smith's Apartments."

Scarlet and blue are favorite colors for drinking shops. The former typifies the blood raised, and sometimes shed, in consequence of alcoholic potations, and the latter a man's feelings the next morning.

The report that an individual was recently injured by the accidental discharge of his duty, is contradicted.

Mars and Venus are the evening stars at present, and very brilliant ones too.

Died.—We regret to hear that Mr. Harry Drum, second clerk of the Gladiators, died at the St. Louis quarantine, on Tuesday, of yellow fever. It will be remembered that Mr. Drum narrowly escaped with his life by the explosion of the Fanny Fern.

Prejudicial.—A merchant who quits advertising might as well take down his sign. The public always infer, that man is either indifferent about doing business, who declines advertising, or that he has retired from public life entirely.

Miss Luella Kountz, a young lady 17 years of age, residing in Allegheny City, Pa., and daughter of Captain Kountz, of the steamer "City of Memphis," took a dose of arsenic on Wednesday last, by mistake for cream of tartar, and died in a few hours.

The River had swelled a very little on Saturday though not as much as the heavy rains led us to expect. The earth was famished for water and sucked the rain up with a surprising thirst, so that it did not run off into the river. There was yet a hope retained that the whole effect of the rains had not been experienced. Some of the streams between this and Steubenville were putting out, and an additional rise was confidently hoped for. We never fully realized how dependent we were upon the elements until this season. Even the present little rise has caused an activity in business circles which has not been felt for some time.

White river, in Arkansas, is getting very low—lower than it has been for a good many years—in fact, it is so low that the steamboatmen have urgently requested the planters not to allow their stock to drink at the river, for a while, as there is barely enough water in the channel to float their six inch "stern wheelers." The planters have held a meeting and agreed to comply with the steamboat men's request.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Another Letter.—The Captain of the steam boat Creole writes as follows:
Dr. A. S. Todd.—Dear Sir: I have for a number of years, used in my family, your Antibilious or Liver Pills, and have found them truly valuable. I use but little other medicine in my family. I find them safe, easy in their operation and they cleanse the stomach and bowels, better than any other physic that I have any knowledge of.

I have also used them for many years on my boat, on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. I have found them to suit the bilious diseases of the South, better than any other medicine I have ever used. Yours very respectfully,
Oct. 16, 1888. JOSEPH RICHARDSON.
